Show & Tell

Dave Cassman designed this night stand off a step stool. He finished it with Watco oil finish.

Munawar Soomro filled a stem of Cholla cactus with resin to create a pen blank he then turned on his lathe.

GT Robinson is building a shed on his property in East Texas.

Sunny Krishna showed off the table he made.

Jim Polanco brought in pictures of the chair he repaired using suggestions from the June meeting.

Gary Turman carved this chain necklace shown off by his wife.

Rick McCoy brought in pictures of a variety of intarsia projects including this University of Kansas logo made up of 33 pieces. He also did a sea turtle made up of 80 pieces and a beetle.

Sidney Futrell made this portable Moxon vise wide enough to let panels drop through. He made the wooden screws with thread cutters he borrowed from Lynn Floyd.

Wayne Bower shows off a tote made by one of his grandkids. Wayne recommends the Jim Tobin book of projects for kids and old farts.

John Loftis made this "wild" looking maple, cherry and walnut cutting board by cutting and regluing strips many, many times. The original glue up was 27" x 72".

Dave Cassman and Jim Polanco won the Show & Tell drawings of $10 each.

Raffle

Dan Nilius: Starrett Combo Square

Ashley Minarzick: Veritas Saddle Square

And the big winner of the semi-annual drawing:

Dave Cassman was the winner of the Powermatic benchtop mortising machine with mortising chisels!
